THE KINDERGARTEN APPROACH

The third of Frank Capra's scientific programs, "The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays," broadcast on NBC-TV last week in color, left me more than a little annoyed. The science shows, paid for by the Bell Telephone Company, are thoroughly admirable in aim and gigantic in scope but increasingly vexing in execution.

It seems to be the philosophy of the writer or of Mr. Capra that we are all children and that before we can understand cosmic rays or even pay attention to them, they have to be tricked up in cartoons, stripped of all ideas more scientifically complicated than an electric switch and reduced to basic English. I have nothing against the popularization of science. My own scientific background is sufficiently sparse to demand a good deal of that sort of thing. Walt Disney has shown how all sorts of abstruse subjects can be made both easily understandable and lots of fun to watch.

But Mr. Capra and associates have gone way beyond permissible limits. It may seem a paradox but the fact is that "The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays" has simplified matters to the point where they are twice as confusing as a straight science lecture would be. Richard Carlson, the actor, and Dr. Frank Baxter, the Shakespearean scholar, who act as joint narrators on this show, start out by saying they are going to make a mystery story of the discovery of cosmic rays. The trouble is it was still pretty much a mystery story at the end of the hour. Oversimplification can be a dangerous thing.

Dr. Baxter and Mr. Carlson, who were in living color, opened up with the discovery of three puppets who -- we were told -- were Edgar Allen Poe, Charles Dickens and Feodor Dostoevsky, collectively gathered to award the Edgar for the best mystery of the year. Whereupon Messrs. Baxter and Carlson plumped for the discovery of cosmic rays as the great detective story of the age.

That, in short, was the gimmick used to unfold the story of cosmic rays and it wasn't a bad gimmick provided they had just let it alone. But they didn't. The puppets kept interrupting with fairly inane questions.

"Galactic clouds," Dr. Baxter would say.

"Galactic clouds?" the Dickens puppet piped.

"Yes, by that I mean . . ."

Now, confound it, if you're going to talk about galactic clouds, talk about them without apology. Or don't bring them up at all. The trouble is that the whole Frank Capra approach is getting increasingly apologetic. The very mention of science on its own terms is muffled. The frame of reference is so cute and arch and coy that it will only drive away the intelligent people who might be genuinely interested in a program about cosmic rays. And I greatly doubt that the cute approach (or any approach, for that matter) is going to seduce the people who don't want any part of cosmic rays into viewing the program.

"Confused?" cried Carlson, at one point, speaking of the scientific reaction to the discovery of the pi meson. "They were bewitched, bothered and bewildered." That is fairly typical of the exclamatory prose style foisted on Carlson and Baxter and it is the very antithesis of the spirit of scientific inquiry. Most scientists, I imagine, listening to a few minutes of this cute verbal posturing would flee screaming. The great intellectually unwashed would not even hover for a couple of minutes.

It's a darned shame, too, because there were bits of film on missile research in the upper air that were wonderfully colorful and stimulating. Occasional glimpses of the workings of the stars were, for a moment or two, very provocative -- and then the galloping cuteness would close in; the cosmic rays would start getting little cartoon faces; the prose style would head for the kindergarten.

The fourth of the Capra scientific programs, titled "The Unchained Goddess," will be about the weather. It'll be broadcast February 12 next year, and I hope the kindergarten approach has been curbed.

Observations

By Bob Walsh

WE HAVE BEEN SPUTNIKED

The man-made frailties of the Soviet satellite may be causing it to lose its orbit, but during its short span in the stratosphere its glaring brilliance brightly lighted the American scene. Weaknesses glared forth so that even the layman could see them, and even the economy-minded were forced to wonder what real economy might be.

Sputnik illuminated the American economy and laid bare our politics. While we were promoting and supporting an administration that sold itself on a "business as usual" program and a balanced budget, the Russians were concentrating on scientific advances which would give them major advantages in the military field and for propaganda purposes.

It forces us to wonder if we are too busy competing with each other for the dollar and for social position to hold our own with a nation which coordinates its efforts toward world power. Does the success of this nearly godless nation and certainly a godless philosophy reveal that there is something fundamentally wrong with our own?

We wonder if an economy which is based on competition for the dollar rather than service to others will work? So far we have had the combination of broad oceans and a continuous cycle of depressions and boom times to make us look good. The oceans gave us time to prepare ourselves for war when our "business as usual" practice left us far behind militarily. And the good and bad times violently adjusted our economy.

But the ocean has lost much of its protective qualities as atomic discoveries and missile transportation turn space into a paper wall. We must be ready at a second's notice if we are to live. Even better, we should be able to anticipate the second, and still better, prevent it.

ARE OUR CONTROLS ADEQUATE?

We have created a few controls which we believe will prevent a complete collapse or even a major depression. But the spiral of prices continues and inflation has become so progressive that the height of its climb cannot be anticipated.

Certainly we cannot use depressions or recessions as the means of controlling inflation, as is suggested by some. Tight money is advocated so that the difficulty of obtaining loans will reduce the amount of business, and put men out of work. Down goes demand and down go prices.

This is to say that our idea of control is to create a situation in which the small wage earner either does not make enough in good times to get ahead, or he is on relief during bad times. If this is the best answer we have, we don't have one.

It is true that we have created a few controls, such as unemployment insurance, social security, and stock market regulations, but we will need a balance between wages and profits before we get anywhere. If every demand for better pay is to be followed by price increases, and every price increase followed by a demand for more pay, inflation will not be licked.

We were told by the big business brains of the nation after the war and after Korea that the removal of price controls would let supply and demand level off the figures and inflation would be prevented. What do you think?

No one likes controls, but does anyone like sputnik and what it reveals?

COMPETITION HINDERS

We do not believe that any "ism" is the answer to the problems of man. Any "ism" we have seen simply means the control of the many by a few.

But we do believe that man will not live together peacefully on this earth if competition is to be the backbone of his economy. When man works for what he can give and not for what he can get we will take our first steps toward approaching utopia.

No one will snap his finger and bring that about. But all of us can come to the realization that if we are to live as a nation which can serve as the foundation for real freedom on this earth we have some sacrificing to do.

Competition must be weeded out of the obviously inappropriate areas, such as the armed forces. We should readily pool our scientific brains for the efforts which will protect us from elimination, either at the hands of others or from the ravages of disease and ignorance.

We should not be quibbling about dollars spent for education. We should be rising above the sovereignty of states and fully realize our oneness and our potentialities as a nation, and as a leader in the world fight for true freedom.

This is not something that a great man or two in Washington, or in the church, or in any area of politics, government, or sociology will do for us with the power of his personality or the creations of his brain. This cannot be until enough of us as individuals become sufficiently enlightened to insist on good leadership, and to recognize it when we see it.

Somehow the people of this world must knock down the walls and come to know each other. But before that we must do so within the borders of our own nation, and within our own state. The petty prejudices that exist even between towns within a county, and the silly competition for business which exists between states, and is used as a political weapon by politicians are typical of the length to which we have carried competition as a deterrent to peacefully living together.

Democracy we must have. But in what framework we place that democracy is for you to decide. Until we can rise above the narrow confinement of party politics we have not taken our first tottering step toward enlightened thinking. As long as our minds are made up by the blackness or whiteness of the Republican or Democrat label we have a mental barrier that is far short of the range required to catch sputnik.

IS IT TOO LATE?

We probably are asking for too much in too little time. The long pull may see us defeated as a nation and real freedom developed centuries later as our truly religious members of society work from within to take over the minds and hearts of man on this convulsing speck in the universe.

It may be that we are beyond war. We doubt if there is any real defense against missiles. A weapon which travels faster than sound and carries a hydrogen bomb which will lay waste thousands of square miles can be countered only with retaliation, and perhaps there would not be time for even that. The best we can expect out of this is that two major powers will reduce each other to ashes and leave some small part of the world in which man can survive in peace.

That peace seems to be in the hands of the scientists, of leaders who for some strange reason cannot seem to get together, and of the people who in their ignorance do not insist that there be no war, and that peace be made by those who pretend to lead.

ASIAN FLU WARNING

The Federal Trade Commission and the Food and Drug Administration are warning all drug advertisers to be careful about the claims they are making for Asian flu medicine or preventatives. Apparently some are making claims which can't be supported by facts, thus affecting the customer's health and his pocketbook. The emphasis on the disease also adds unnecessary jitters to those with seasonal colds and just plain flu.

ILLUMINATING

If you want to know what many tv viewers do when the commercial comes on ask the telephone operators. They easily can tell you when the product is being plugged because that also is the time when they do most of their own particular brand of plugging. At commercial time the lights go on in scores and the operators are given a busy moment.

Which suggests that people may like tv, but do the sponsors fully benefit from the investment? We have noted that this is the moment when conversation starts and visits are made to the kitchen and other parts, especially those parts involving plumbing.

That is the nice part about newspaper advertising. People often take their reading with them.

LET THE PEOPLE DECIDE

We note that some of the leading television figures are taking a stand against pay tv. They argue that it should be free, as they say it is today.

But is it? Don't tell us that the viewer is expected not to spend enough money to many times over pay the cost to the sponsor. In fact, the income from an advertising budget must be many times its figure or it is money wasted.

Why not let the people decide? If those who wish to invest in paid television are willing to risk their money, let them install it. If the public is willing to pay for it, why should such a facility be denied those who want it?

Many homes probably would have both. We then would learn which were better and which the public preferred.

Chicago is taking wired, closed circuit television very seriously. The promising results in Bartlesville, where first run movies are shown on a closed circuit, is encouraging others. Chicago interests are asking Bell Telephone about

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

Small business firms which are interested in obtaining business with the government should benefit by a meeting which is being held in Erie, November 14, at 4:30, in the Pennsylvania Electric Company building. It is sponsored by the U. S. Small Business Administration, the Greater Erie Chamber of Commerce, and the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce.

Copies of bid invitations, drawings, specifications, and other information will be available. There also will be an exhibit of items procured by the armed services, and there will be explanations of purchasing procedures by top officials.

TWO SPECIALS

Many people probably are confused by the term "special handling" as applied to mailed packages. They would like to know the difference between this kind of service and special delivery.

Special handling applies only to parcel post. It assures you of direct service. This means your package will enjoy the same treatment as first class mail.

Special delivery assures you of the same special handling advantages, but in addition it applies also to letters. The real difference is that it is delivered immediately upon arrival.

For this immediate delivery you pay a little more. The price difference under two pounds is about five cents. Between two and ten pounds special delivery costs you twenty cents more than special handling. Over ten pounds the difference is about ten cents.

With the heavy mailing season coming up, you may be interested in these two services. You may not want immediate delivery, but perhaps you would like your parcel post package to receive direct attention, like first class. In this case your answer is special handling.

WOW OF A COW

A national record has been established by Penstate Inka Pathfinder Star, which happens to be a cow residing at Pennsylvania State university. She is the first holstein to make over 1000 pounds of butterfat for six consecutive times on herd improvement registry testing.

Her best year was her seventh when she produced 1172 pounds. She also came through with 1100 pounds in her eighth.

She did some other producing, too. She has four sons, four daughters, sixteen grandsons, and 228 granddaughters.

BID NOTICE

The Tidieoute Area Joint School Committee will receive bids for its coal supply for the year 1957-58 up to the time of its regularly scheduled meeting on November 11, 1957 at 8:00 p. m.

HUNGARIANS DENIED RIGHTS

Hungarian refugees are being deported without benefit of hearings, according to a complaint made by the American Civil Liberties Union. This policy is applied to those who are said to be considered subversive. It violates the immigration laws, which entitle an immigrant to democratic procedures, including a hearing, right of counsel, the opportunity to present witnesses, and the right of appeal. We are denying them the rights for which they shed blood in the streets and sought in America.

BOND SALE

Away below quota is the story of bond sales in Warren county for 1957. Through September the amount purchased was only $739,791. This is about 58 per cent of the quota which is $1,263,000 for the year. And that includes those chain sales which were supposed to be booming sales around here.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY

When the Warren Boys Choir celebrates its tenth anniversary with a program in Beatty auditorium on November 2 at eight o'clock, it will be culminating a long series of major accomplishments. Starting with ten boys who were brought together for the purpose of augmenting Byron Swanson's senior choir at Christmas time, they asked him to lead them as a group and the Boys Choir was on its way.

The first big time appearance was with Paul Whiteman's television program in a coast to coast network. This brought an invitation to entertain the banquet of champions of the national Soap Box Derby. Voice of America recordings then were made, and nation-wide broadcasts resulted with Jan Peerce, Milton Cross, and Will Rogers, Jr. Many believe the Town Hall appearance was the big one. Here the critics would be heard and future bookings affected. Obviously they were complimentary and the choir has continued to be welcome in many cities.

This it is doing right now, as it tours many states and Canada. Thus it not only will celebrate an anniversary Saturday evening, but also a homecoming.

Your curiosity, if nothing else, should move you to hear this Warren group which is so well known nationally. The tickets are a dollar and there are 750 of them.

CLOTHING NEEDED

National membership week of the Needlework Guild may sound like a period set aside for the ladies who gather in sewing circles and apply their wide variety of needles. But it is much more than that. Clothing is needed for men, women, and children. The Guild distributes such contributions to the needy in this area. To become a member you need only give two or more new articles of clothing or household linen.

If you want details, call Mrs. John Urbaitis, Mrs. James Miller, Mrs. A. F. Dunham, or Mrs. Richard Smith.

In Brief

A HEAD-ON COLLISION that occurred on the Kiantone rd. just south of the New York State line Saturday evening resulted in the death of a 54-year-old Jamestown, N. Y., woman and serious injuries to seven others.

Killed in the crash was Mrs. Frances Persch, a former Pittsfield resident. She was the county's eighth traffic fatality of the year.

Mrs. Persch was riding in the south-bound auto operated by Frank Adams, 78, of Frewsburg, who suffered lacerations of the right knee and jaw and fractured ribs. Other passengers in the Adams' auto injured were Mrs. Clara B. Ferry, 70, Jamestown, N. Y., fractured right forearm and possible internal injuries; Clarence Greely, 77, also of Jamestown, fractured jaw and severe black eyes.

Robert Simonsen, of Warren, was driving the northerly moving vehicle and acquired fractured ribs in the crash. Passengers and their injuries: Mrs. Ann Simonsen, 39, lacerations of scalp and face, two fractured ankles; Harold Demel, 49, facial lacerations; Mrs. Emma Demel, 40, cut nose, laceration of cheek, fractured jaw.

Damage to the autos was estimated at $2,100.

Authorities are continuing their investigation of the mishap.

A DEER AND CAR tangled up at Henrys Mills near Sheffield Monday night causing about $2,000 to the vehicle and the hunting camp it wildly ran in to. The animal had to be disposed of.

Operator of the car was Gerald Powell, 22, of Brookville.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY Tom Wagoner stated this week a petition for certiorari to be presented to the U. S. Supreme Court in the case of Norman W. Moon, Connellsville man found guilty in the slaying of Judge Allison D. Wade in a Warren County Court room January 13, 1954.

Moon, sentenced to death by the court, is presently awaiting a decision from the state Pardons Board on a plea of clemency. A stay of execution was granted until November 18.

The petition to the high court will say that Moon's constitutional rights were infringed upon when Warren County Judge Alexander C. Flick, Jr., refused to recognize a sanity commission finding that the Connellsville man was suffering from mental derangement.

The defense will ask that the case be reviewed.

FIRE BROKE OUT in a Grand Valley machine shop shortly before one o'clock this morning (Thursday) destroying a new portion of the structure. Complete details were not learned at press time today.

Volunteer firemen from Pleasantville, Youngsville and Garland responded to the alarm.

TOO WIDE. Fred Simones, 337 Park st., swung too wide out of his drive at 10:50 a. m. Sunday and struck the front end of a car driven by Lyle B. Owens, 208 Hammond st., as the latter was approaching on the opposite side of the road. About $450 damage resulted.

WRONG PLACE. An Avonmore, Pa., man, Joseph C. Kepfer, was charged with passing at an intersection last Thursday after a two-car crack-up at the intersection of Pennsylvania ave. and Struthers st. He was making a pass at the crossing when Robert J. Mills, Lakewood, N. Y., proceeding in the same direction, started a left turn off the avenue and hit Kepfer on the right side. Damage was estimated at $600.

Later in the day at 1:40 p. m., minor damage was caused when brakes on a car driven by Kathleen McKarski, Clarendon, failed and she sideswiped a stopped car in front of her operated by Bruce R. Fiscus, Youngsville. The incident happened at the intersection of Pennsylvania ave. and Market st.

CHECKS BOUNCED. Kane police are holding two Akeley area men in default of $500 bail after they were charged with passing bad checks. The father and son pair, Melvin Tingue, 44, and Clarence, 20, were nabbed Saturday evening.

The two have been sought by Warren police for about the past two months on a similar charge.

THE FIRST OVERHEAD west of Warren on Route 6 was the scene of a lone-car mishap at 11:40 p. m. last Friday. Driver of the auto, which struck the concrete rail on the bridge, was George P. Golaszowski, of Germyn, Pa.

ROLLED 'ER. David Rowley, 18, of Warren, lost control of his car on the Thompson Hill rd. seven miles north of Warren Monday night but escaped injury when the vehicle overturned in a ditch. He told police the car first went off the left side of the highway and then back over to the right side and the ditch.

THE ERODED HIGHWAY in Pleasant twp., which has forced one-way traffic to avoid sending a wayward car into the Allegheny river, continues to receive the attention of various state officials, such as the highway and forest and water departments. But we wonder if they haven't missed one closely related office?

About twenty years ago the Warren airport was in process of being constructed and around it was a large dike. The dike would have kept a direct flow of water from running across the West Side lowlands, and if it had been complete on the lower end the West Side would have been spared many of its floods.

But the borough was ordered to remove this dike. The reason given was that it would force the stream against the south bank, exactly where erosion has now eaten away the bank and broken part of the highway.

At that time this editor suggested that instead of removing the dike, we should rip-rap the south bank with stone, thus protecting the West Side and the airport from flood waters, and preventing the south bank erosion. Now the bank has eroded anyway, the floods have done their damage, and we have paid the cost of removing the dike.

Who ordered this removal? The Pittsburgh office of the Army engineers! State officials have little or nothing to say about the river. Streams of this size are under federal supervision. Which makes it rather evident where you should go if you are looking for a conclusion.

THE WARREN AIRPORT problem probably will be cleared up at the November meeting of council. An experienced port manager is interested in taking over the port without benefit of subsidy. He wants full use of the building, including the apartment, and will bring in new planes for servicing area industrial plants and private needs. He also will be equipped to repair private planes. It probably will be necessary to conclude a short-term lease.

SHERIFF EXPENSES continue to be a subject for the press. The Warren county commissioners are standing by their contention that they are not obligated to pay criminal investigation costs incurred by the sheriff's office. Though Judge Alexander C. Flick has ruled that the costs are legal, the commissioners have not paid them since early summer. It is possible that more legal action will result as Sheriff L. E. Linder seeks payment.

FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

WARREN COUNTY -- Youngsville and Lawrence Park tied, 13 to 13, the first time in six starts the Eagles have not won their game.

Northern Area surprised Kane, 26 to 13, and Coudersport blanked Sheffield, 31 to 0.

SECTION II -- Titusville, in all probability, wrapped up the 1957 Section II championship with a 19 to 0 win over defending champion Corry Tuesday night. Oil City bounced Franklin, 20 to 13, on Saturday. In other Saturday games, Titusville blasted Port Allegany, 47 to 12, and Millcreek upended Corry, 21 to 6.

AREA -- Bradford shaded Punxsutawney, 25 to 24, Jamestown clipped Lockport, 39 to 19, and Erie Academy bumped Strong Vincent, 26 to 7. Erie Cathedral Prep downed Erie East, 12 to 7, and Youngstown, Ohio, South took Sharon, 35 to 0. North East edged Girard, 20 to 19, Greenville whipped Grove City, 13 to 0, Johnsonburg tripped Emporium, 26 to 6, and St. Marys blasted Otto Township, 41 to 6.

BEATY BEATS LINCOLN

An intercepted pass which resulted in a touchdown two plays later gave Beaty a 7 to 0 win over Lincoln in Chadakoin League play last week and dumped the previously unbeaten Lincoln eleven out of the top spot in the league. Quarterback John Wooster stole the Lincoln aerial in the second quarter and two plays later he passed to Hultman for the game's only touchdown. Seder plunged for the point after touchdown.

WARREN HOSTS KANE

After one week end of inactivity, the Warren Dragons will take on the Kane Wolves on War Memorial Field, Saturday, November 2, at 1:30 p.m. The Dragons have lost four games and tied one in their five games. The Wolves, who were dropped 26 to 13 by Northern Area last week, have won two games and lost four times this season.

JAYCEES SPONSOR SHOOT

A turkey shoot for marksmen will be sponsored by the Warren Jaycees on Sunday, November 10. Contests have been arranged for archers, and shooters with shotguns and rifles. Winners of all shoots will be awarded live turkeys as prizes. Prior to the turkey shoot, members of the Warren Archery Club will display their talents with the bow and arrow.

HELP YOUR FIELD

There are not many of those beautiful fall days left and Saturday there is a game with Kane on War Memorial field. The Dragons have been dragging this season, but fan support might serve to stiffen their morale and break the barrier to the victory side of the record.

And that's not all. Reserved seat tickets sold by the Jaycees will help build up the Memorial Field fund. All income from the seats and from the parking lot go into the field fund.

Reads Just Like A History Book!

To the experienced eye, the history of the world is locked in rock. That's why these core samples, drilled from deep down in the earth, provide essential clues in the never-ending search for more natural gas.

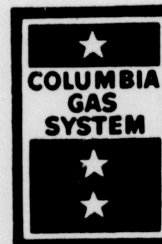

Science plays a key role in the task of satisfying your ever-increasing requirements for natural gas. Micro-geology and electronics assist in the drilling operation . . . chemistry helps improve the purity of the product . . . automation speeds its distribution.

Today, no effort is spared to make certain that a constant supply of dependable, economical natural gas is always available . . . where you need it, when you need it for better living.

No wonder then that natural gas is the "wonder fuel" . . . modern and efficient. And it serves you best when you use it with modern, automatic gas appliances.

BIG COURT YEAR

It promises to be a good basketball year for Warren on some of the hard courts. There are enough good boys home from the service and from college to assure a very fast YMCA City league.

It also is possible that someone will try to weld a group of the fast boys into a town team. However, this usually ends up in a split and the young men today don't seem to be willing to really drill at it.

With good coaching and serious training Warren could have one of the best. The talent is there, but is the will?

The same applies to high school ball, as is revealed by the grid squad. Warren's high school basketball possibilities for the year are not clear. And they won't be evident until the boys get down to league cases in January. We have some good December ball clubs before we go pffft!

TIME FOR IMPROVEMENT

It was a good week end for Warren. It didn't lose a football game.

Next Saturday it might even win one. Kane will come to town and it is about time that this big Dragon eleven began to show some signs of improvement. Our sympathy for a new system and green players is wearing a bit thin at this late date in the season.

These boys are only about three games away from next year. Except for some poundage they will put on during the intervening months, they aren't going to change, and there won't be any football to be learned. They are due to know where the ball is going and how to make room so it can get there.

Kane won't be a soft set-up. The Wolves lost to Northern Area, but played a well coordinated game, which made them look better than their big opponents. Northern Area scored on single plays that took the carrier for long yardage. Kane made long series of downs but couldn't quite grind it out against the heavies from up north.

Warren should take this one, but it will require some blocking and a bit of tackling. Kane is not expected to open the door and bow low. It is more apt to slam it in our face with low, hard charging.

AND GOLF, YET

We meant to report a few weeks back that Lionel Calloway, veteran golf professional of this area, and many other areas, has been handed quite an honor. He has been made an honorary vice president of the Professional Golf Association.

If this doesn't sound like much, it may grow in magnitude when you learn that the only other honorary vice president of the PGA is Walter Hagan.

To talk with Lionel is to talk with an old time pro who knows golf as it was taught in the apprenticeship of yesterday. He was a caddy and caddymaster in England. He moved up the line to full rank as a professional and has served in that capacity for many of the world's leading courses.

Lionel has given much to the game. He is well versed in golf course architecture, and has laid out a few that are being played today. He invented the Calloway handicap system, and he now has one shaping up that should do much for the golf professionals' proposed pension system. You probably will hear about it next summer when all courses will be invited to participate in a birdie tournament.

The birdies and eagles will be rated and the courses of the nation will be playing against each other on a stated date. The course with the highest score, arrived at by totaling its birdie and eagle figures, will win the plaque, cup, or whatever goes to the champion.

And the money will go into the professional golfers' pension fund. If it goes over they will have enough to create a very well rounded sum. And it stems from a very canny little golf pro who started polishing clubs for fifty cents a week back in jolly old England a few many years ago.

SHOW US THE HANDS

We have been watching several sport programs on television that involve matches between golfers and bowlers. They are designed to interest even the uninitiated, and have picked up a major following of Americans who like a good contest, even if they don't know how to do it themselves.

That is fine, and we know this will result in more golfers and bowlers. But many of us who watch already are playing these games and we have no objections. If we are expected to watch these top performers we would like to learn something from them. And we can't do it the way the cameras now are handling the job.

The golfing pitch and putt shots too often leave the hands completely out of the picture. The camera catches the club's blade or the player's face. This tells us little. We want a little more all-over shot, and especially one of those arms and hands working.

The same goes for the bowlers. To see a ball hook in is fine. But we see them hooking regularly on our own alleys. The difference is that these big boys carry more pins. Why?

The difference must be in the delivery, and especially in the hands. But we never are shown a close-up of those big-scoring deliveries.

With cameras shooting these matches in advance, there is no reason why telephoto lenses could not be used, with a pin-point focus on the key point. These could be brought up very close and could be shown in slow motion as well as fast.

We would like to see those golfing hands at every point of the swing when the big name is shooting for cold cash. We would like to see the action when he is chipping and putting. Do they really pronate, supinate, stay solid, or what?

And the bowlers . . . do they come through with a stiff wrist? Are they under the ball. How do they give it that lift and twist?

TE LA DI O

PERSONALITIES

JOHN CROSBY, whose Television and Radio column appears each week in the Observer, will be host for the "Seven Lively Arts" which makes its debut on CBS-TV this Sunday.

MERRIMAN SMITH has been assigned to write the half-hour program on Franklin D. Roosevelt for the CBS-TV documentary series "20th Century". The Roosevelt story will be seen in March, 1958.

ERIC SEVAREID, Washington news commentator, has been chosen to act as host of "Conquest", the special CBS-TV series surveying advances and challenges in the physical sciences. The first program will be seen on Sunday, December 1.

BING CROSBY has requested CBS to postpone his Sunday night radio show indefinitely. Wonder if this change of schedule coincides with the Crooner's recent marriage to starlet Kathy Grant.

FARLEY GRANGER and SHELLEY WINTERS have signed for the first two leading roles in A. J. Cronin's "Beyond This Place", third CBS Show-of-the-Month on Monday night, November 25 from 9:30 to 11 o'clock.

JAMES MELTON, former Metropolitan Opera star, has been co-host this week on NBC-TV's Bride and Groom program which is telecast week days at 2:30 p.m.

GREER GARSON will be guest star November 13 on NBC-TV's "Father Knows Best" series.

ODDS & ENDS

NBC recently dropped the Cotton Bowl Game in Dallas, Texas but CBS will probably cover the football classic on January 1 on both radio and television.

THUNDER RIDGE is the name given a new television series being readied by Television Programs of America, Inc. Headed by Charlotte Greenwood, the cast will include three humans, a wolf, raven, squirrel, skunk, deer and bear.

THE FABULOUS INFANT, scheduled for November 10 on NBC's Wide Wide World points up the intense rivalry in the TV industry. CBS-TV has promised to lend material to its biggest competitor for the program which is a history of television for the past ten years. ABC-TV bluntly said it "would not cooperate".

AN NBC SPECIAL is being readied for the nights when Dinah Shore vacations. On November 10, the first substitute program will be televised with stars Tony Martin, Red Buttons, Vera Ellen, Nat "King" Cole and Joan Davis.

WBEN-FM RADIO is expanding its programming to bring three and a half continuous hours of music each week night, from 6:30 to 10 p.m. The program, which started Monday night of this week, includes an hour of orchestral dinner selections at 6:30, half hour program of jazz, show tunes and standard songs from 7:30 to 8 and full two-hour Hi-Fi Concert Music program from 8 to 10 p.m. This latter will allow the inclusion of lengthier works. For instance, Friday night (Nov. 1) Arturo Toscanini and Orchestra will perform Schubert's Symphony No. 9 in C, plus world-renowned cellist Pablo Casals in Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 4 in G Major from the Prades Festival.

SPORTS SCENE

BOXING - Middleweights Spider Webb, of Chicago, and Willie Vaughn, of Los Angeles, meet Friday night in a 10-rounder at 10 p.m. on Cavalcade of Sports. WJAC - WBUF - WICU.

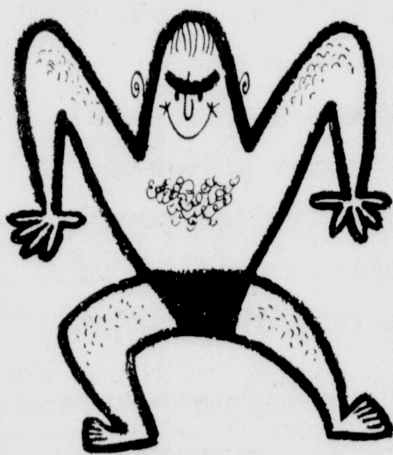

RED BARBER'S CORNER, immediately following the fight and on the same channels, will feature an interview with harness-racing driver John Simpson, winner of this year's Hambletonian and Little Brown Jug races.

NCAA FOOTBALL at 2:15 on WJAC - WBUF - WICU, Saturday afternoon. Followed by Football Scoreboard at 4:45.

PRO FOOTBALL - New York Giants invade the Green Bay Packers at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon on WGR, WFBG and WSEE. Cleveland Browns and Washington Redskins tangle in Cleveland at 2 p.m. Sunday on WBEN and WICU.

WRESTLING can now be seen on WJAC at 1:00 Saturday afternoon.

HOCKEY - CBS will cover 21 professional hockey games this season and WBEN will carry all the Saturday afternoon games starting with the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers at 3 p.m. The game will originate live from Madison Square Garden.
